Dr

and to generate a log of the monitored data, the log indicating the selections of the plurality of operations by the user;

a communicating device configured to communicate the log of the monitored data to a remote site.

D&

8. (Three Times Amended) A system comprising:

interface means of a target application means, the interface means for providing a plurality of operations to be selected by a user;

monitoring means for directly monitoring user selections of the plurality of operations of the interface means by the user automatically upon start-up of the target application means, and for generating a log of the monitored data, the log indicating the selections of the plurality of operations by the user;

communicating mans for communicating the log of the monitored data to a remote site.

D3

15. (Three Times Amended) A method of monitoring usage of an interface of a target application, the interface including a plurality of operations to be selected by a user, comprising the steps of:

directly monitoring user selections of the plurality of operations of the interface by the user automatically upon start-up of the target application;

generating a log of the monitored data, the log indicating the selections of the plurality of operations by the viser; and communicating the log of the monitored data to a remote site.

DIF

22. (Three Times Amended) A computer program product comprising:

41